

BEFORE YOU START

A Quick Note About Your Health

Please talk to your doctor before making changes to your diet.

This is especially important if you:

- Take prescription medications (especially blood thinners, diabetes, or blood pressure medication)
- Have a diagnosed medical condition
- Are pregnant or breastfeeding
- Have a history of disordered eating
- Are over 65 or have mobility concerns

Some anti-inflammatory foods (like leafy greens high in Vitamin K) can interact with medications. Your doctor can help you make safe choices based on your specific situation.

This guide is for educational purposes only and is not medical advice. It was created to help you have a more informed conversation with your healthcare provider.

Bring This to Your Appointment

Print this food guide and bring it to your next doctor visit. It gives your doctor a clear picture of what you're eating (or planning to eat) so they can give you specific, personalized advice. Most doctors appreciate when patients come prepared.

Your health is personal. This guide is a starting point, not a prescription.

HOW TO PRINT THIS GUIDE

Step-by-step instructions for the best results

1

Open the PDF File

Open the food guide PDF on your computer. It should open in Adobe Reader, Preview (Mac), or your web browser. If it opens in your browser, that works fine for printing.

2

Press Print

On a PC: Press Ctrl + P on your keyboard.

On a Mac: Press Command + P on your keyboard.

This opens the print window.

3

Check Your Settings

Paper size: US Letter (8.5 × 11 inches)

Scale: Set to 100% or "Actual Size" (not "Fit to Page")

Color: Select "Color" for the best result

Orientation: Portrait (tall, not wide)

4

Print Only the Food Chart

In the print window, look for "Pages" and type 1 to print just the food chart. You don't need to print this instructions page every time.

5

Click Print

Hit the Print button. Your food chart will print in about 30 seconds.

Tips for Best Results

- Use thicker paper (cardstock or matte photo paper) if you plan to hang it on the fridge
- Laminate it to make it last longer in the kitchen
- Frame it with a simple $5 frame from the dollar store for a clean look on the wall

No Printer? No Problem.

Take this file on a USB drive to Staples, Office Depot, FedEx Office, or any local print shop. Ask for a color print on cardstock. It usually costs about $1-2 per page. They can laminate it for a few dollars more.
